Rabbi Michal

Last month, at the end of 2025, we celebrated miracles during the holiday of Chanukah. And yet, it felt so hard and our minds were heavy with the attack on 1000 Jews at Bondi Beach, Sydney, on the first night of Chanukah. The notion of “miracle” felt remote — and personally, it became an intentional effort to light the candles and say “Al Hanissim” (for the miracles) without a ‘frog in my throat’. I kept saying to myself that resilience and continuity are key to our survival and to this year’s themes. And now that we are in the new secular year of 2026, I’ll ask you to pause and take a moment to reflect: What do we mean when we say ‘miracle’? I will open by sharing something personal regarding miracles:

On September 13, 1982, I had a nearly fatal car accident. My red 1969 Volkswagen veered off the road, down a steep ravine, in the north island of New Zealand. I was on my way to a Hillel campus meeting. I was a new and inexperienced driver. As the car rolled down the hill, I slipped out from under my seatbelt and out past the car door onto the hard, rocky, thistle-bushed, and very muddy terrain. The car continued to roll right on top of me with my neck crushed beneath it. My then boyfriend, “J”, who was in the car, leapt out and with all his strength, held the car up so that my neck wouldn’t break under the weight of the sinking car, and until witnesses behind came rushing down to help. Together they rolled the car over. For the next 12 months, my life was spent rehabilitating in a wheelchair, learning to walk again (after several knee reconstructions and slowly regaining feeling in my damaged sciatic nerve), and regaining use of my right arm (whose elbow was smashed and reconstructed with two plates and 14 screws.) During that year I had completed my BA studies in Education, and at its end, I was recruited into the Israeli army to work with wounded soldiers and was part of a new kibbutz in the Galilee. THIS was all one huge miracle.

Miracles are featured throughout the Jewish textual tradition. Supernatural events appear throughout the Bible, including the Ten Plagues, the parting of the Red Sea, and many more occurrences. Miracles are featured in later rabbinic texts as well, and ancient through contemporary works analyze the nature and significance of miracles. But to acknowledge a miracle, one has to be open to it and in today’s culture, which bases itself in skepticism, cynicism, and what we call “scientific rationalism”, it is very challenging. We study probability and statistics; we often explain away the inexplicable through scientific lenses and causation; and we control our mindsets while rejecting the idea of “Divine Intervention”. Often we just call it “luck”.

But repeatedly, I hear stories that simply seem incredible. Just these past three weeks, I learned of two kidney donations received by our members. The donors were not blood family. And yet, the matches were perfect and saved these two individuals’ lives. The donors were both there at the right time and the right place. I think of the recent terrorist attacks and the victims, with our hearts broken — and yet, it could have been even worse under the circumstances. I don’t know what to call it, and though I have so much anger, the words on my lips are “Thank G-d there weren’t more.”

We are commanded to recognize the huge impact on the continuity of life and G-d's miracles by reciting the Jewish blessing of Birkat HaGomel, thanking G-d for rescuing and redeeming us in these four circumstances:

- * Upon crossing an ocean (flight over water, travel by boat, etc.)
- * Upon crossing a desert (and other life-endangering occurrences)
- * Upon recovering from a very serious illness
- * Upon release from prison.

The blessing is:

ברוך אתה ה' אלהינו מלך העולם הגומל לחיבים טובות שגמלני כל טוב

Baruch atah Adonai eloheinu melech ha'olam ha'ogmel lechayavim tovo shegamalani tov.

Blessed are You, Lord our G-d, Ruler of the world, Who rewards the undeserving with goodness, and who has rewarded me with goodness.

The community then responds:

מי שגמלך כל טוב הוא יגמלך כל טוב סלה

Mi she-g'malcha kol tov, hu yi-g'malcha kol tov selah.

May he who rewarded you with all goodness reward you with all goodness forever.

We may not always feel G-d's presence, especially in times of darkness, despair and fear. But I wish us all the ability to be open-hearted and open-minded so we can recognize G-d's miracles and have faith; miracles do happen.

With love, Rabbi Michal.

Rabbi Michal believes in miracles. On her visit to a former congregant that was ill in Los Angeles last month, she ran into these two visionaries.

Director of Education Ellen Glassman and Rabbi Michal Morrison Kamil are proud of their delicious vegan latkes which were served as part of the Shanayim grant and celebrations!

Cantor's Notes

It was with great sadness that I learned of the murder of Rob Reiner. His passing was not only a great loss for Cinema, but also for me as a Jew. Like just about anyone who watched TV in the 70s, I first met Reiner as “Meathead” on the comedy show All in the Family. Despite given the Polish name “Stivik,” his character had the Jewish values of honesty, education, and Tikun Olam, Repairing the World, that enamored him to me as a young adult. But Reiner’s Jewish cultural background could more easily be seen in the many successful movies he directed following that role.

While his films rarely centered on Jewish plots, his work is textured by a Jewish sensibility. His films operate as a masterclass in how cultural identity can inform storytelling through moral inquiry, intellectual engagement, and a specific brand of resilient humor. From the courtrooms of A Few Good Men to the enchanted forests of The Princess Bride, Reiner’s movies are anchored by the values of a childhood infused with learning, truth, and behaving in a moral, ethical life.

At the heart of his movies is a commitment to themes deeply rooted in the Jewish tradition. Reiner explicitly linked the themes of A Few Good Men to the lessons of the Nuremberg trials. The film’s exploration of moral responsibility—specifically the danger of blindly following orders—reflects a Jewish emphasis on individual conscience and intellectual independence. His respect for knowledge and education is a consistent through-line in his stories. Growing up in a culturally Jewish home, Reiner was taught that integrity is inextricably linked to “Torah” and intellectual engagement. Whether his characters are debating legal ethics or navigating the complexities of romance, they are almost always engaged in a rigorous search for truth.

His comedies would use humor to express his Jewish heritage. This is most evident in The Princess Bride. While the film is a fantasy adventure, the characters of Miracle Max (played by Jewish actor, Billy Crystal) and his wife Valerie (Carole Kane, also Jewish) introduce a distinct sense of Yiddishkeit to the story. In the original book, Max’s household keeps kosher, and in the film, the couple’s bickering and comedic timing echo the traditions of the Borscht Belt. His 1989 classic When Harry Met Sally is an example of his ability to weave Jewishness into the fabric of secular life. It’s most iconic scene takes place in a Jewish deli. The film is and has been described as a “non-Jewish Jewish film” because it relies on cultural touchstones rather than visual Jewish religious symbols. The deli becomes a ‘secular synagogue’ as the Jewish deli is depicted as a vital social and cultural sanctuary.

THE SUBTLE JEWISHNESS IN ROB REINER'S MOVIES

I believe Reiner purposefully leaned on Jewish tradition in romantic comedy, where the neuroses and emotional immaturity of his characters are initially overt (ala Woody Allen). This would arc into maturity, as his love stories frequently featured men who were emotionally stunted and must grow through their relationships. His emphasis on personal evolution and domestic partnership as a path to "becoming a mensh" is a recurring theme in his movies.

Rob Reiner's films did not need to be about Judaism to be Jewish. By infusing his work with the values of our heritage—humor, education, and a relentless pursuit of justice—he has created a body of work that resonates with the universal humanism that was founded on a Jewish heritage. His success as a Jewish director of movies should be recognized in the same way that a great Jewish composer (think Leonard Bernstein) uses his heritage in his musical compositions.

Reiner's films were always enjoyable, even with repeated viewings. I always had looked forward to his movies in the past. Now, I must be satisfied with his reruns. "I'll have what she's having," is a meme that I will always connect with a Jewish deli, and I will laugh every time I hear it.

Baruch Dayan HaEmet—Rest in Peace, Rob Reiner. You were not a Meathead. Your Jewishness will forever be embedded in your Art.

Did you fill out the congregational survey? Thank you to everyone that did.

We want your feedback and we, the board and leadership, are listening to each and every one of you. We will continue to bring valuable diverse events and activities to CBENT to meet your needs. We do, however, need your help. As predominantly a volunteer organization, please contribute. Come to an event, service, or educational opportunity. Get involved, tune in to help and make a minyan in the morning, evening or on Shabbat. We do the planning and organization, but we need you to connect and make the partnership that creates our vibrant community. We are here for you! Rabbi Michal and Cantor Steve are here for YOU!

Thank you to everybody who attended the creative Shabbat service and Ruach Hadash. We had wonderful participation, feedback, and attendance. We hope to continue to bring these types of events that spark your interest and spiritual connections.

January will bring many exciting events to CBENT. Men's Club Shabbat, Hebrew with the rabbi, Better Together, Torah study, Shabbat morning study sessions, Bingo, Book Club, Trustees Havdalah dance and much more. Please stay involved, read our weekly announcements, Shofar, and website—we plan all this for you.

Happy and Healthy New Year 2026!

Men's Club

The Men's Club sponsored a bagel brunch on November 16 to discuss ideas for future events. Thanks to all who joined us for their ideas. We discussed these ideas in our December meeting and will continue to plan new events that are of interest to the congregation. And, of course, all are invited to join us.

Due to inclement weather, our annual Latke Brunch and Bingo, sponsored by the Trustees and Men's Club, was rescheduled from the first day of Chanukah to the last day on December 21. As the event's name implies, latkes were served and we played bingo. Raffle prizes were awarded, including a first prize of $500.

We invite you to join us for our annual Men's Club Shabbat on Friday, January 23, 2026! For those of you who participated last year, we will be contacting you to secure a spot this year. For all others, please contact Rich Gordon to participate. Feel free to bring family members to join you. All are welcome to take part in both Hebrew and English prayers.

With great sadness, we mourn the passing of Audrey Pollin. Audrey, along with Arthur, was an original member of CBENT and their dedication and generosity have helped sustain our congregation over the years. Audrey always lit up the room and she was a great friend to all of us. We will always remember the joy she brought and we will miss her greatly.

A Day of Service, A Lifetime of Connection

On Martin Luther King Jr. Day - a day dedicated to service, justice and love - students from the Mensch Making Academy and the Mini Mensch Academy in partnership with jkidphilly families and CBENT's Love Thy Neighbor Committee, will come together with helping hands to visit Wesley Enhanced Living (WEL), a senior living community where many of our congregants reside. This visit is more than just a trip; it is a living expression of the values Dr. King upheld, a testimony to some of the Jewish values that are the foundation of our school and embedded in our curriculum: Hiddur P'nay Zakayn - Honoring the Elderly; Tikkun Olam - Repairing the World; Bikkur Holim - Visiting the Sick; Derekh Eretz - Common Courtesy and Respect; and Hakhnasat Orhim - Welcoming Guests and the belief that every person matters.

Our students, their families and our faculty are excited to bring music with Miss Andi, art, games, laughter and - most importantly - warmth and love to the residents at WEL. Our Mini Mensch students will sing songs. Our older students and Madrichim will engage in conversation and share art projects created thoughtfully for this day and designed to bring beauty to the residents' living areas.

This intergenerational program reminds us that wisdom does not live only in books and that youth is not defined solely by age. When seniors, children and teens come together, something sacred happens. Our students learn patience, empathy and respect as they listen to stories of lives well-lived that they can learn from. Our Beth Elders and the residents of WEL feel seen, valued, remembered and affirmed as essential members of our extended community. These interactions build bridges across generations, replacing distance with connection. Our teens especially love learning with our Beth Elders!

For our students, this experience is a powerful lesson in what it means to be a mensch - to show up with kindness, to give without expectation and to understand that repairing the world begins with small loving acts of kindness. To the residents at WEL, our visit is a reminder that they are not forgotten, that their presence matters and that they continue to shape the hearts of the next generation.

Honoring Martin Luther King Jr. Day through service teaches our students that justice is lived and not just learned. Come join us! As music fills the lobby at WEL and artwork changes hands, both generations will be uplifted, proving that when we come together with intention and heart, we do more than mark the day on the calendar. We build a community rooted in compassion, memory and hope. We hope to see you on Monday, January 19 at 10:30am in the WEL lobby!!

HOW CAN WE TIE THE HOLIDAY OF HANUKKAH TO ANIMAL ADVOCACY AND VEGANISM?

During Chanukah, we celebrate freedom from oppression, the miracle of the oil, and the lights. As we demonstrate compassion for animals through our food choices, this is a way of rebelling against animal agriculture and factory farming. Plant-based diets are miraculous because they can reverse disease and bring back health, energy, and vitality and can help us stop the environmental disasters that animal agriculture is wreaking on our earth. We are living in a time when the miraculous power of plants is coming to light for health and our planet. Some of the most creative recipes available are plant-based nowadays. Even carrots can be made into lox just as deliciously as salmon can. Miraculous!

Vegan Potato Latkes

1 large	Onion
1	Flax Egg
2	Russet Potatoes
1/2 Cup	Flour
1/2 Cup	Matzah Meal
1 1/4 tsp	Kosher Salt
1/2 tsp	Ground Pepper
1 tsp	Baking Powder
1 Cup	Oil

Peel, roughly chop, and add onions to food processor and process until a small puree and NOT completely liquified. Drain onion into a clean dish towel and gently wring out as much moisture as you can. Add onion to a large mixing bowl. Add flax egg to onions.

Peel potatoes. Shred one potato and add to bowl with onion. Roughly chop the other potato and add it to the food processor. Pulse until almost pureed. Drain potato into dish towel and gently wring until most moisture is removed. Add potato to the bowl. Add next 5 ingredients to the onion potato mixture and mix well. The mixture will be thick. Let mixture sit 10 minutes while you heat your oil.

Heat 1/4 cup of oil in frying pan on medium heat. Depending on size of pan you may need to add more or less oil. The latkes should be fried in at least 1/8-1/4" oil.

Using a 1/4 cup measuring cup, scoop out latke batter and careful drop in prepared pan. With the bottom of the measuring cup, lightly flatten out the top of the latke a bit. Don't over crowd the pan.

When the edges of the underside of latke start to turn golden brown, carefully flip the latke over and fry on remaining side until golden and crispy brown. You may have to add oil and adjust heat as necessary.

Drain latkes on a brown shopping bag covered with paper towels. Sprinkle additional seasonings as necessary. Serve hot with sour cream and apple sauce. ENJOY!

Let mixture sit 10 minutes while you heat your oil.

Heat ¼ cup of oil in frying pan on medium heat. Depending on size of pan you may need to add oil. The latkes should be fried in at least 1/8-1/4" oil. Sisterhood

Happy New Year to All,

At a time when people all over the world are rockin' and reelin' from the economy, antisemitism, violence and sadness, it's important that we connect with each other to keep our HOPE AND OPTIMISM alive. Mark your emotional "bingo card" to include attending Shabbat Services as well as the many social and educational programs that happen here at CBENT!

Want to feel empowered? Try our Women-Centered Rosh Chodesh event each month. Rabbi started the December program by having all the attendees share their wishes for the new month and new year. Most people were hoping for less hatred and more security in our world. Our guest speaker, Nancy Swartz, shared her legacy of generations from her grandmother's "words of wisdom and acts of good deeds" throughout time and how they influenced her to become a person of hope in these trying times. Rabbi also led us in a musical prayer for healing. Please mark your calendars for January 14, to join us this month.

Many thanks for all the clothing donations. The donations were distributed to various agencies in DELCO.

It's NEVER TOO EARLY to think Bid 'n Buy! Mark your calendar for April 23 and start collecting those gift certificates and items for the boutique table.

May you have a Healthy and Happy New Year!
